

Communication from CSXT to MARC Brunswick Line Passengers Friday, October 29, 2010

CSX Transportation (CSXT) wanted to take this opportunity to reach out to passengers on MARC's Brunswick Line directly. We regret the recent inconveniences that have been experienced by MARC commuters, and wish to thank you for your patience. CSXT will be completing maintenance work on the line on Monday and will be working closely with the Maryland Transit Administration to restore the service to its previous performance levels in the weeks ahead.

As background, an array of factors in October contributed to the delay, from storms to tragic accidents. The effects were made worse by the fact that there was maintenance ongoing that is necessary to preserve safety and increase reliability. CSXT remains committed to working with Maryland officials to provide increasingly safe, reliable passenger and freight rail service to citizens across the state and thanks you again for your patience.
